RareBooksClub. Paperback. Book Condition: New. This item is printed on demand. Paperback. 24 pages. Original publisher: Washington, DC: U. S. Govt. Accountability Office, 2008 OCLC Number: (OCoLC)276876027 Subject: Postwar reconstruction -- Afghanistan. Excerpt: . . . combination of the two to ensure the safety of their movement. According to the Bureau of Diplomatic Security, State obligated about 125 million for PRT movement security between September 2005 and May 2008. PRTs in Iraq have two sources of programmatic funding available. First, PRTs have the authority to obligate funds for projects funded through the Quick Response Fund jointly administered by State and USAID. The Quick Response Fund was established to accelerate economic, social, and civil society development within Iraqi provinces. The fund is administered by PRT staff who identify projects to build the capacity of governments to deliver services, empower women and youth, and support civil society and small businesses. For fiscal year 2007, according to State, 136 million in Economic Support Funds was allocated for the Quick Response Fund. Second, PRTs assist in identifying and executing projects under States Provincial Reconstruction Development Council program. According to State, this fund pays for small-scale infrastructure projects at the provincial level to strengthen the ability of provincial governments to deliver essential services and key development projects to their communities. Projects receive approval from the U. S. embassy in Baghdad and are executed by the Army Corps of Engineers. For fiscal year 2007, according to State, 600 million in Economic Support Funds was allocated for the Provincial Reconstruction Development Council program. PRTs in Iraq may also coordinate with other U. S. -funded programs, including USAIDs Local Governance Program, Community Action Program, and Community Stabilization Program; and DODs CERP. The USAID representative to the PRT is expected to coordinate on USAIDs activities in the province through...
